

This is from 'Greek Myths' by Marcia, published by Walker Books.

Who flew too close to the sun? What was his expression as he fell and what did he say? Have more feathers fallen off his wings or are they nearly in one piece?

What images do you think the ancient Greeks would have put in the border and what colours might they have used? What do you think the bird is saying?